

Lito Ioakimidou, born in Athens in 1971, has studied French Language and Literature at the National and Kapodistrian University of Athens. She has a PhD degree in Comparative Literature from the University of Paris IV-Sorbonne (Myth and Novel in the First Half of the 20th Century: Forms and Techniques of the Emergence of the Myth). She has taught in the School of Social Sciences at the University of Crete (2000-2003), in the Departments of French Studies at the University of Cyprus (2003-2004) and at the Aristotle University of Thessaloniki (2004-2010) and, since 2011, she is Assistant Professor of Comparative Literature in the Department of Philology at the National and Kapodistrian University of Athens. Her researches, publications and courses on undergraduate and postgraduate level focus on movements in the European literature of the 19th and the 20th centuries, literary myths, the evolution of literary genres, stylistic questions in the field of literary modernism and interartistic questions (especially between literature and painting).